FOUR MEN HAD DEATH EAT KEYS

TAMMORSE, July 1.—Four hundred names were marked with keys in a prominent place today in the investigation of the death of Walter H. Ballou in the apartment of Mrs. Helen M. Angle.

The four hundred keys are in the possession of four hundred members of a local lodge.

Mrs. Angle's apartment was formerly the meeting place of the lodge and when they were given up as such the keys were never changed.

As a result, any one of the 400 lodge members had access to the woman's rooms.

The telephone book with the nine names marked and an address book kept by Mrs. Angle have been seized by Chief Brennan and left in evidence in the case.

Stored in the book to found a card asking if "John" had address of a five-year-old and dates which indicated Mrs. Angle frequently consulted the address. Chief Brennan said that the woman today.

In addition to the card and book several volumes of "The New Psychology" and similar works were found. According to the police they add another element to the mystery.

Men and women have been found in Stamford who claim to know of Mrs. Angle's interest in spiritualism and of incidents in which she has figured during the last winter.

Ballou, they say, evinced little interest in this side of Mrs. Angle's life. He was never seen at the seances. Chief Brennan hopes to learn the names of all the men who had participated in them.

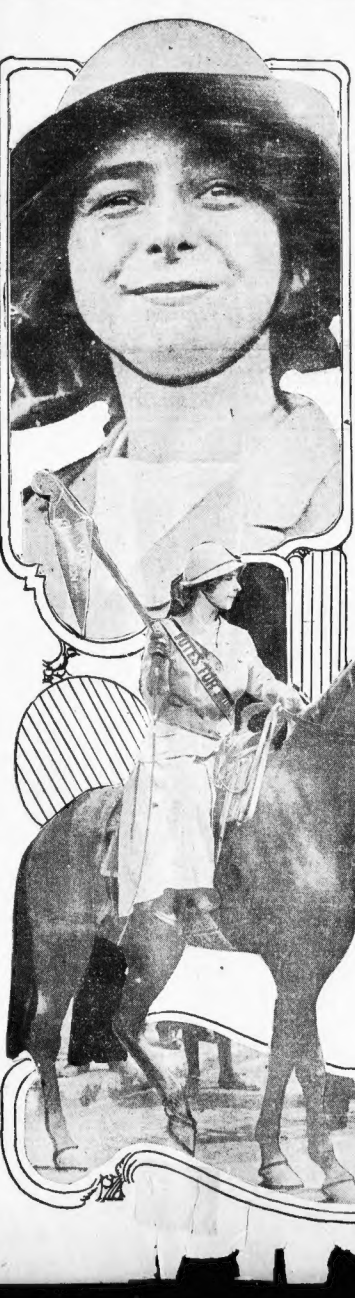

Homer S. Cummings, who has been usually in charge of the case since last Friday, takes office as State Attorney for Fairfield county today. He believes the outcome of the case is inevitably a charge of homicide.

There is information that the ball head of Mrs. Angle may be recalled she is now at liberty under $5,000 bonds awaiting the outcome of the coroner's inquest.

A costly secret pin, its ownership in dispute, was found on the floor of the studio, Leonard Blondel, father of the "prisoner," says it belongs to his daughter. The police say it came from the tip of the mysterious visitor, who they believe saw Ballou killed. The police are still seeking this visitor.

"I hope they won't keep me until they find the third person in the case," said Mrs. Angle, according to Leonard Blondel. "If they do, they will keep me forever, for there was no third person."

SUFFRAGIST BEGINS RIDE THROUGH STATE ALONE, PENNILESS

Seek HORSEBACK TOUR FOR SUFFRAGE

Mrs. Claiborne Claffin, armed with a suffrage banner, clad in khaki and without a cent in her pocket, left Boston today on horseback for a four-month tour of horseback for the purpose of carrying the word of suffrage to the small towns of the State, and to the farmers, who she believes are yearning for an explanation of just what suffrage is and what it is wanted.

She left early today, starting from Boston street, and rode through Hyde Park and Dedman at Fox and Redville. "I have been to many fields, where the real trip begins," Mrs. Claffin said. "I have been to many fields, where the real trip begins," Mrs. Claffin said. "I have been to many fields, where the real trip begins," Mrs. Claffin said.

"Country people all love horses, and they respect a woman who rides. I know from past experience that they will stand and listen to a woman on horseback as long as she is willing to talk. With that in view I have decided to go alone and unprotected and without a cent in my pocket or in my stocking."

Mrs. Claiborne Claffin as she looked starting out for the "cruise." She will depend on the contributions to cover her expenses and expects to spend four months on the tour.

Jewelry—Small gold watch, instilled "J. H. M. Co. gold bracelet; two rings, one with red stone, one with three small pearls; locket, instilled "J. H. M. Co. locket."

Clothing—Red sweater with blue border; lavender one-piece dress; on hat, white button shoes; white stockings.

The girl's parents and her employer have been working hard since her disappearance in an effort to find her. They say she never cared for horses, was a "home girl," and was steady at her work.

Mrs. Marovitz, who is fairly ill with grief at the girl's disappearance, pleaded piteously today to see the body.

Missing Girl Natick Girl With Pistol Holds Thief

Mrs. Emma Tann of Lincoln street extension, Natick, captured a burglar in her mother's house, early today, at the point of her revolver, standing guard over the intruder while her mother's hired hand, Edward Goddard, went for the police.

The burglar she captured, Robert A. Hanson of Natick, was the prisoner who escaped from the Natick lockup last Monday, but was unable to pull through the same opening his fat collar, who got stuck when halfway to freedom.

Mrs. Tann was awakened by a noise in the pantry. She ran downstairs with her revolver, after awakening Goddard. While she was lighting a lamp, the intruder dove through the pantry window, carrying away glass, sack and all. Goddard ran to the back door to head him off. The burglar also ran to the back door and tackled Goddard as he came out into the dark. Then Mrs. Tann appeared in the doorway with her "gating gun" and stood guard over the man till Goddard found officers' assistance and stole.

In court today Judge M. P. Kennedy found probable cause, and held Hanson for the Grand Jury under $1,000 bonds. Hanson was out under $1,000 bail furnished by a brother. He was arrested June 21, charged with two counts of breaking and entering, and after his arrest with "breaking out of his cell."

Mexican Situation

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 1.—This city again mourned its tenth victim in a month in this city when Russell Dolphin shot his young schoolmate, Anton Yell, on the Zunder school playground. Dolphin is under arrest.

BROCKTON MAN SLAIN BY SHELL

BROCKTON, July 1.—Thomas W. Cook was killed and Stephen W. Heal lost his right and part of his left hand in the explosion here today of an old Japanese six-pound shell.

The accident occurred in Cook's room at the Crescent Hotel at 225 Crescent street, where Cook and Heal lived.

Cook was a former sailor in the United States Navy. He was on the transport steamer at Shanghai during the Boxer troubles, and at that time picked up an unexploded Japanese shell.

He carried the shell with him during his travels of the last seven years, and early today in Brockton came across it in his trunk. Heal was with him, and they decided to take the thing apart and see how it was charged.

Heard Half a Mile.
The explosion was heard half a mile away and the hotel was shaken in every timber. Guests from adjoining rooms and men from the office downstairs came rushing up into the corridor. They found smoke issuing from the cracks about the door of Cook's room and heard it in. Heal was lying unconscious on the floor, bleeding from the arms and hands; fragments of Cook's body were about the room.

Dr. W. H. Connor and Dr. Melton of St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Brockton attended the two men. The doctors happened to be guests at the hotel. Heal was taken to the Brockton hospital, where his condition is extremely serious.

The shell which exploded is believed to have been a six-pound, rapid-fire, percussion shell. Its hawke in the hotel room was indestructible.

REPORT HUERTA PLANS TO TAKE FLIGHT AT ONCE

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Diplomats received here from unofficial sources in Mexico City state that President Huerta has sent his secretary and family toward Puerto Mexico and is making preparations for his own departure on short notice.

Emilio Robles, head of the Mexican Mediation Commission, is quoted as "believing" the report.

General Carranza has telegraphed his agents in Washington, that he has not yet heard from his associate leaders with regard to the wisdom of participating in the proposed meeting of representatives of Huerta and Carranza to discuss the internal affairs of the republic.

FINAL CONFERENCE TODAY ON WITHDRAWAL OF VERA CRUZ TROOPS

BY LAURENCE TOD.

Staff Correspondent of the American. MEDICATION HEADQUARTERS, Niagara Falls, Ont., July 1.—Withdrawal of the American troops from Vera Cruz was the subject proposed for discussion in the final conference today by the three chief American mediators, the American delegates and representatives of the Huerta government in Mexico.

A check for the proposed dealing with the removal of the troops from the Mexican coast has been demanded by the Mexicans and approved by the American envoys. The answer of the American envoys, who are here, is that the American troops should be withdrawn from the coast as soon as the Huerta government is able to take control of the situation.

BELIEVED MEDIATION CLOSING TONIGHT. WILL NOT BE REOPENED

BY WILLIAM J. MADDOX.

Staff Correspondent of the American at the War Department.

Washington, July 1.—When the mediators leave Niagara Falls tonight the final phase of the conference will have been written, according to officials here. The arrangements will be permanent, it is believed. Despite the high sounding statements which have been made, declaring the mediation highly successful, administration officials are inclined to think the matter of time, they declare, before the business of intervention will be closed.

Administration officials fear for the safety of Americans and other foreigners in Mexico.

The warning to British subjects by Sir Lionel Carden urging them to leave Mexico at the earliest possible moment was considered significant, the full part of the situation was revealed when the State Department received the dispatch from the British Minister in Mexico, advising the British government to take the same action in the case of its citizens.

MANY PART IN ULSTER FIRST ARMED CLASH

RELAT, July 1.—Two were injured in three fighting which occurred during the first actual clash of the military forces raised by the Home Rule and Ulsterist factions.

The clash occurred at Omagh, in the County of Tyrone, where the wounded were a number of civilians and several policemen.

The policemen were hurt when they endeavored to disperse the combatants.

In the charge of the royal constabulary, clubs were freely used.

Further trouble was feared today because of the angry feeling aroused by the clash of military forces.

The Home Rule regular troops may be sent here, it is believed. Today the police are far outnumbered by the Home Rule.

The safe must be strong, fireproof, burglar-proof, and have a large saving cup valuably inscribed by the members of the executive, engineering and operating departments of the board in the board room at No. 16 Central street.

The presentation was made by William B. Maloney, secretary to the chairman, who also presented to the board, a bouquet of flowers and a beauty review.

The retiring board will be before the Governor's Council today to take the question of Maloney's place.

SAFETY FIRST

Most persons who buy a safe for their home or office are not aware of the fact that the safe is not a safe unless it is a safe in every way. The safe must be strong, fireproof, burglar-proof, and have a large saving cup valuably inscribed by the members of the executive, engineering and operating departments of the board in the board room at No. 16 Central street.

The presentation was made by William B. Maloney, secretary to the chairman, who also presented to the board, a bouquet of flowers and a beauty review.

At this time Robinson was about twenty years old. He considered himself a man, a thorough-going man of the world. It is not difficult to tell that a determined and not over-ambitious young man would go when his wooing was opposed by his father and mother, and the girl he sought to marry. The history of love matches that he would ask the girl to marry him without parental consent that, nine times out of ten, he could win the girl over to this plan. This is just what happened to the daughter of Lawrence Robinson and Doris Robinson, who were married in 1934. Robinson wanted Doris to go with him to town of Middletown, about thirty miles from New Haven, Conn., where he had a job. There they were married. Robinson then took Doris back to Washington "courtship," where they remained a short time. The bridegroom then took her back to Middletown, and so far as known they never had any more children. Robinson is a self-insurer.

Robinson never intended to settle down with Doris. He always seemed to make little difference to her between his life there and his life in New Haven. He had many friends there, where all his relatives and childhood friends lived. He wished to go to New York City, where he had a few friends, and he thought it best to tell her that he made his bride his mistress. He then told her that he was going to New York City and asked her to accompany him to "Cherniaht." This was Robinson's idea of a regular place to

"ONE MILLION MORE"
GILCHRIST Co.
WE GIVE AND REDEEM LEGAL STAMPS

1. The first step is to identify the problem or question that needs to be answered. This involves understanding the context and the specific requirements of the task.

Who Is Your Customer?

Have you ever met your real customer, Mr. Manufacturer? Have your salesmen a speaking acquaintance with him? Have you told him about the merits of your product? Have you explained why he should give your goods the preference? Have you done anything to stimulate his desire for your goods?

In short, have you made any attempt whatever to sell your goods to him?

"Most assuredly," you say. "Every dealer in Boston is known to our travelers, and we certainly wouldn't pay a salesman who couldn't tell our customers all——"

One minute, please. The dealer isn't your customer. He's simply a part of your sales organization, and a decidedly independent part of it at that. He is distributor for other concerns in whose goods he is just as much interested as he is in yours. And he isn't particularly interested in your product, any more than in your competitors'.

The dealer realizes that he can serve six who order their goods by a well-known trade name as quickly as he can serve one to whom he has to demonstrate that a product is good.

Your real customer is the Public—the Public who wears your clothing, eats your pickles, uses your safety razor. You've got to sell your goods to the Public.

When the user wants your goods and won't take any other—then you are independent of all but him, your real customer. To make the user want your goods, you must do two things:

- (1) Produce an article of value.
- (2) Tell him what you make, and why he should prefer it.

That's advertising.

When are the makers of piano actions, for example, going to discover that they do not know their real customers; and, what is worse, that their real customers do not know them? So the public has to buy pianos in blind ignorance of the quality of the most important mechanical part of the piano.

What is it going to be worth to the piano-action maker who first discovers that his real customer is the Public, and not the piano manufacturer who incorporates the action into the complete instrument?

EDITH ROELKER TO WED ON JULY 17

MR. AND MRS. A. WINSOR WELD OPEN THEIR VILLA AT NEWPORT

Among the many brides of June who are off on their honeymoons is pretty Mrs. Henry Cook, who before her marriage was Miss Nina White of No. 1237 Blue Hill avenue. The young couple are enjoying a motor trip through the White Mountains and upon their return will reside in Mattapan.

At her wedding Mrs. Cook wore a handsome gown of white satin and tulle. The ceremony took place at St. Andrew's Church, with the Rev. Father Ryan officiating. Miss Heister White was her sister, maid of honor, and was a gown of silk green satin. The bridesmaids of Miss Boston were Miss Bull.

June, with its heavy of beautiful brides, has passed its history, but July still has a few weddings tucked in with other gay and brilliant events. Among the most important of July's weddings will be that of Miss Edith Roelker and Charles J. Curtis, Jr., which has been set for July 17, to take place at 2 within, in St. Luke's Church, East Greenwich, R. I.

Among recent arrivals at Newport are Mr. and Mrs. A. Winsor Weld and the Misses Theresa and Louisa Weld of Suffolk road, Chestnut Hill, who are at their villa on Coddingford Point. The Winsors, during their stay, have remained in town over the country club races and the various Harvard events.

Mr. and Mrs. William L. Henry of Babcock street, Brookline, and Miss Henry have recently concluded their travels in Switzerland, and are now in Paris preparatory to sailing for home.

That most exclusive little Summer resort, Islesboro, Maine, will have another interesting season among its habitués this summer. Mr. and Mrs. Amos Hollingsworth and his husband have taken a cottage there for the season.

Judge and Mrs. William H. Moore, who have been abroad for some time, have sailed, and immediately upon arrival will occupy their summer home at Prince's Castle.

That interesting young couple, Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel P. Emerson, who since their marriage have resided in Hingham, have just purchased the fine old mansion and grounds known as the Shuman estate, near the house they have been occupying. Mrs. Emerson is at present the guest of her mother at the Lawrence household in Boston.

Three Burned When Gasoline Explodes

Three persons were injured when gasoline being poured into a tank on the motor boat Latus, at the Maiden Bridge, Charlestown, exploded. Edward J. and George Farrell of No. 45 South street, Cambridge, were of the craft, and James Burke of No. 15 South street, Cambridge, were burned about the face and hands.

MISS FARMER ASKS GUARDIAN FOR ACCOUNTING

George E. Hammond, guardian in the State of Maine for Sarah Jane Farmer, founder of the Green Acres Colony at Ellipton, Me., is asked for an accounting of her estate, according to the statement of Frank R. Sashford of Orono, Me., her attorney. Mr. Sashford declares:

"By a series of mistakes and misstatements in the Probate Court of Maine, a guardian was appointed for her perfectly sane woman on the ground that she was insane. The guardian has received rentals and income from her property in Maine. She now petitions the court that be ordered to give her an account by items of what he has received and expended of her property which is not less than $10,000 in value from January 1, 1912, to July 1, 1914."

"The persons, three or four in number, who now occupy and dispose of her estate, are so many 'Balaists' that they are followers of the 'Balaist' of the Grand Old Man of the Commonwealth. Persons of this class are mentioned may be taking advantage of Miss Farmer's injuries, but that is no part of their religion. So far as that religion is concerned, I respect it. I had an agreeable and friendly interview with Abner Balaist himself, when he was at Green Acres, and knew from his own lips what was the mission of Miss Farmer's estate, which I have no reason to suppose he has changed."

MRS. ANGLE'S TELEPHONE LIST IS BALLOU CLEW

asked her to conceal nothing. I told her that if there was anything in the list that might make things look bad for her, she must tell me.

"She said, 'Daddy, there is nothing. You know I never received any man in my apartment except Mr. Ballo.'"

Mr. Blomfield asserted again that the police theory that Ballo was murdered in Mrs. Angle's apartment was nonsense. He said he has faith in the reports of his experts that stain in Mrs. Angle's home are not blood stains.

It became known today that when Chief Brennan, in Mrs. Angle's room, picked up the black stain on which gray hairs are ground into stain, he believed to be blood, Mrs. Angle cried: "After God's sake, Bill, don't turn that upon me!"

"I am sorry, Nellie," the chief replied, "but I've got to take it along. It's my duty."

Chief Brennan still is convinced that the story of the murder as outlined by him, with a flat iron as a weapon and a third person, is the only one, and that it will form the basis of the State's case at the trial, which will be held probably at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon.

EXPERT SOON TO REPORT.

Dr. Weaver, the expert employed by the police, will be ready to report Thursday. Upon his findings in regard to the stains on the rug, floor and bed linen will rest the upholding or destruction of the police theory that Ballo received his injuries in the apartment.

Chief Brennan will not comment on the fact that the bloody footprints in the hall and on the stairs vary in size and number. He says, however, that the theory of murder has been built scientifically upon measurements taken by City Engineer Parsons and upon the analysis of Dr. Weaver. Mr. Brennan measured the footprints. They will be outlined on the plaster of Paris model Mr. Parsons is constructing for use at the inquest.

MRS. ANGLE TALKS.

"I hope they won't keep me here until they find the third person in the case," said Mrs. Angle, according to Leonard Blomfield, her father. "If they do, they will keep me here forever, for there was no third person."

"I will make my life there was no third person in my daughter's flat that night," Mr. Blomfield added. "I have gone over the case with my daughter very thoroughly. I have asked her to conceal nothing. I told her that if there was anything in the list that might make things look bad for her, she must tell me."

"She said, 'Daddy, there is nothing. You know I never received any man in my apartment except Mr. Ballo.'" her daughter again. "It wouldn't be so bad," she cried, "if I could only know she is alive—if I could only hear from her, even if she couldn't come back to me."

No message of any kind has come from the girl since she vanished last Wednesday.

Not only that, but the police have been unable to find a single clue to work on. The girl, from the time she left home after lunch, seems to have vanished into nothing. There is no clue, no hint, nothing in her past life or in her belongings at home to indicate where she may have gone.

The girl was not dressed for going.

BLOODHOUNDS TRAIL ASSASSIN OF RICH WOMAN

NEW YORK, July 1.—In an attempt to solve the mystery surrounding the murder of Mrs. Louise Bailey, wealthy widow, daughter of Thompson, in the office of Dr. Edwin Carman at Freeport, last night, bloodhounds were brought into use today to search for the assassin. The bloodhounds took up a trail under the window through which Dr. Carman says the fatal shot was fired and followed it as far as Longbrook, nine miles away, but stopped there.

The police believe that if Mrs. Bailey was the wife of a New York hat manufacturer, was killed by an assassin standing outside the house the night she died in an automobile. Dr. Carman says he believes that the person who killed Mrs. Bailey intended to murder him instead. In measure the police accepted this theory though they worked at the same time on several others, one of which was that a woman fired the shot.

An Mrs. Bailey stepped toward the door a revolver was thrust through a window eight feet above a lamp. The bullet passed through the window shade and a shot rang out.

"The shot," cried Mrs. Bailey, and fell to the floor. Dr. Carman sprang to her side. She died in a moment.

The bullet had lodged just above the heart.

Dr. Carman sprang to the shattered window and looked out. There was no one in sight and no trace had been left behind by the assassin.

The slaying had apparently been carefully planned and was executed at a moment when the player was able to escape without detection.

Williams of Dedham and William of Wied

Doubtless George Fred Williams, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Greece, will have to go. In fact, he has gone, so far as the diplomatic service is concerned, though Washington denies having received the resignation he declares he sent. That is a matter of but passing moment, however. Being a diplomat, he committed the ultimate indiscretion of trying to do something, and therefore must be bounced.

The essence of diplomacy is to do nothing whatsoever and to not do it to the last possible moment.

Just what Envoy Williams discovered in Albania to arouse his righteous wrath to the point of resigning a post for which several Democratic wheelbarrows are said to be waiting his own report does not make clear. But one casual comparison made in a course of his somewhat prolix statement does radiate truth. William of Wied, whom the Powers sent to be King of Albania, says: "He has no more right to be here than have."

Quite true. And, more, the German princeling whom the powers picked out to rule a people who neither knew or wanted him lacks two qualities which the American diplomatic adventurer possesses—brains and devotion. Probably it was because he lacked these qualities that the Powers picked him for the post on which he ran away at the very first sign of trouble.

We don't know what Williams of Dedham hopes to do in Albania, but it is certain that he can do nothing worse than William of Wied has done. A man of cultivation and bookish tastes, he may think to do for the Albanians what Lord Byron did with pen and purse for the Greeks. Or, having been a newspaper reporter in youth, he may seek to stir the world with the story of Albanian wrongs, as McGahan did with those of the Bulgarians.

One thing is pretty clear—whatever he does will have to be done as an individual. Knight errantry and the diplomatic service are incompatible even with the present remarkable direction of the Department of State.

There is a curious parallel between the political situation in Serbia and Bosnia which brought about the assassination of the archduke Ferdinand and his wife and that in Albania which brought the United States minister to what may prove an act of noble self-sacrifice, or a mere bit of emotional folly, according as he succeeds or fails.

In the former instance the passionate sense of nationality of the Serbs, stung into revolt by the Austrian determination to repress its manifestation, led to the political crime. In the latter the endeavor of the great Powers to enforce an alien, a hated and obviously a weak and futile ruler upon a warlike people has resulted in no better a tribal and religious war than an American, deeply imbued with the fundamental doctrines of his native land, and shocked at the atrocities he witnessed, cried aloud in protest.

Assassination may never have changed the history of the Balkans. The entry of one man against the hideous brutality of the Powers that for years and decades have been fomenting and encouraging the most savage and barbarous wars in the Balkans to serve the ends of international politics may be drowned in the world's laughter at its futility. But at least the thinking part of humanity can hardly fail to have its attention directed by these two events to the struggle of the national sentiment cherished by so very different and widely separated peoples to assert itself against the cool assumption of authority over them by the robber powers of Europe.

Political Murder Is Futile

Killing Solves No Problem.

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

Twice the old Austrian Emperor has seen the heir to his throne murdered. Once the killing was a personal vengeance based on a man quarrel.

Now the heir is killed by a man seeking to avenge political wrongs, real or imaginary—for which the murdered Archduke was no way responsible.

Nothing is more futile than political killings that stop the world's history. The murderer, usually a monster of perverted sanity and bravado, destroys his own life as well as that of his victim—and the only result is to increase the influence of the dead man and his family.

The murder of the Archduke will increase the affection of the Austrians for the old Emperor.

Another Hapsburg will succeed and rule. No change, except, possibly, a longer lease of individual rule instead of republican government—based on sympathy for the murdered man.

In-Shoots

After a man has once broken into society he often becomes something of a bore.

When seeking an assistant the next seldom selects a man who has already got a job.

The louder a fellow talks the less people seem to want to listen to him.

It is seldom that one has the chance to grab the same brand of prosperity twice.

No man is led into temptation in the shape of a pretty woman. He is led into temptation by the thought of a winning battle.

A good many of these self-made men never get the chance to win a battle after they have married a smart woman.

Realities are generally more expensive than dreams.

Believing that is inspired by politics is a doubtful character.

It is possible for a man to be broke and still, to an extent, be a dead end.

Do not let go of a good job expecting that it will chase you around the block.

If you extend an invitation to old Maury she will greet you with the glad hand every time.

Compliments that we feel for are seldom satisfactory.

It is easier to lead a man to drink than it is to drive him.

Some men worry the wrong women, and never find it out.

It is possible to start something and then have it roll away from you.

None fail an easily before the advent of the red at the table.

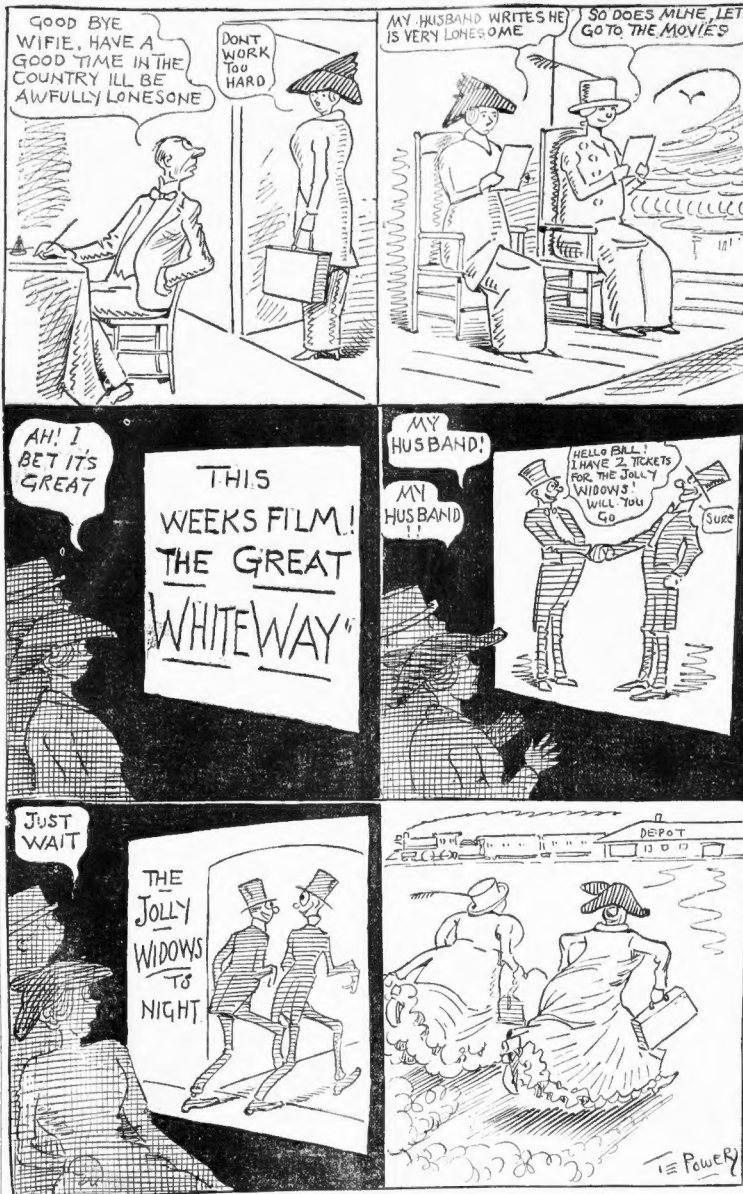

There's hope for the next "White Mesa."

What's all that hurrahing we hear over there? Who's pulled all that crowd to the stand on the square? Who's doubled up his back the air like a full? While his words rise and fall like a November gale? Who's pointing his finger and thumping his chest? It's only the Colonel—he's taking a rest.

Who's lying about in an automobile? And telling forth crowds how to get a square deal? Who's mixing in every political fray? With a yell and a whoop and a hip hip hurrah? Who's pointing his finger and thumping his chest? It's merely the Colonel—he's resting, that's all.

Who's plugging for Pinchot in Penney one day? And the next holding Perkins up out of harm's way? Who's talking from platforms at water tank stations? And devoting his nights to extended orations? Who's sounding the tocsin from valley and hill? It's only the Colonel—he knows he is ill!

On the Road to Recovery

We learn that the wife of Hon. George W. Perkins was not so severely broken by the Hon. Amos Perkins's death as she was unable to do any more campaign work.

The Impending Fourth of July

By ELBERT HUBBARD

A SPASH of horror swept over the country a few years ago when one hundred and seventy-four school children were caught in a fire-trap at Collingwood, Ohio, and killed.

Yet now we are getting ready to destroy or irreparably wound and injure thousands of children exactly as we have done once a year for several decades. The instruments of death are deliberately being purchased and placed on sale for July Fourth.

Last year there were reported, in the large cities alone, over three hundred deaths from fire-traps, following injury to hands; four hundred and forty persons lost one eye; and ninety-two children were reported as having both eyes blown out by explosives on this one day.

Hardly a village can be found in America where there are not armless or sightless beings who are living out lingering deaths, victims of this violent way of expressing "patriotism."

In every city and village care is now being taken to see that Collingwood's disaster shall not occur again. So great is the feeling of shame, remorse and revulsion at Collingwood that many families have moved away from that suburb, and there is an effort being made to change the name of the place.

We would forget the slaughter of the innocents.

At Collingwood the great silence came to the stricken children at about most instantly. Suffocation means quick insensibility, and the passing is painless.

There were no maimed and suffering at Collingwood—death was merciful.

But in this matter of destruction of life and property on July Fourth we are making active preparation to repeat it with all its lingering variations.

The tragedies are so scattered, and, although we know that deaths will surely follow, we are unworshipfully praying that it will not be our loved ones that shall perish.

Against the lives lost and the human bodies mutilated, there is an annual average loss from accidental fires in America of about five million dollars traceable to fireworks. The money spent in these disastrous inventions is also over five million dollars. We pass laws to keep children, but we leave to the worst thing they manufacture.

What have we to show for this? I tell you: We have noise, distracted nerves, smoke, fire, sightless eyes, maimed hands, powder-blown faces and corpses of little boys and girls. And a debt entry in money at ten million dollars.

In the life of one innocent, little, prattling toddler worth the fun of whose toddler? Why, your own!

Yes, we welcome their diabolical noise and smoke and pay them good money—and we are now saying the Lanes and Penates a bonus in blood.

The Chinese make these things

Questions Answered

ANGLO-SAXON, CELT AND GERMAN

G. K.—The term "Anglo-Saxon" comes from the fact that England was largely settled, after the old British rule, by the "Angles" and "Saxons" from Germany. The Saxons were, of course, from Saxony, and the Angles took their name from a town near Rielwick called Anglen. The Anglo-Saxons are, therefore, a mixture of the two.

It may be said, in passing, that the Germans, English, Americans of English ancestry, Danes, Dutchmen, Swedes and Norwegians are all of the same stock. This Germanic stock (it may be very appropriate-ly be called such) now numbers about 140,000,000 in Germany, Great Britain, the Scandinavian countries, Canada, Australia, South Africa, the United States. There is no human stock that is anywhere strong numerically.
